He retired from that position in 2005 and at that juncture; UMS had a population of more than 12,000 students. Tan Sri Abu Hassan had also initiated the recruitment of foreign students (notably from China) into UMS which is believed to be the first for a Malaysian public university.

to Informatics. His passion for education and fervent demand for quality will help ensure the integrity of Informatics academic credentials.

Despite the setbacks in 2004, Informatics has proven that its business fundamentals remain sound. It had made concerted efforts in the reformation of its operations as well as senior management team over the past few years. The Board believes that focus on revival of the core values of Informatics emphasizing on the quality of content and service delivery will eventually translate to top line growth for the company. The appointment of Tan Sri Abu Hassan as the new Chairman of Informatics will be a complement to management's ongoing efforts to offer education service of the highest quality.

With the stewardship of the new Chairman, the board composition is further strengthened with an addition of another well regarded academician.
